A copy of each non-U.S. patent document and each non-patent document is being submitted to comply with the provisions of 37 CFR §1.97 and §1.98.

The submission of any document herewith, which is not a statutory bar, is not intended as an admission that such document constitutes prior art against the claims of the present application or that such document is considered material to patentability as defined in 37 CFR §1.56(b). Applicants do not waive any rights to take any action which would be appropriate to antedate or otherwise remove as a competent reference any document which is determined to be a prima facie art reference against the claims of the present application.

TIMING OF THE DISCLOSURE

The listed documents are being submitted in compliance with 37 CFR §1.97(b), before the mailing date of the first Office Action on the merits, and within three (3) months of the mailing date of the foreign Office Action.

CONCISE EXPLANATION OF RELEVANCE

The documents listed on the attached PTO/SB/08 were cited as being relevant during the prosecution of the corresponding Japanese application. A partial English translation of the Japanese Office Action of January 6, 2006, follows:

NOTES (FOR CITED DOCUMENTS, SEE LIST OF CITED DOCUMENTS)
(Claims 1-9)

Duplexing of a wireless base station is a well known technical idea, as described in <0006> of cited example 1, which also describes causing backup to be performed by means an instruction from a higher level device.

In a duplexing arrangement with an active and backup, switching between the active and backup devices except in cases where a higher-level device takes the lead, as in cited example 1, is also a well-known switching method.

Furthermore, when a backup system becomes an active system, sending the necessary data from the active system to the new active system at the time of switchover is a commonly practiced technique, as described in the <Prior Art> section of cited example 2.

As discussed above, the present invention does no more than to adopt a duplexing arrangement with an active and a backup and to employ a well-known operation for the duplexing of wireless base stations of cited example 1, and is thus found to be easily conceivable for a person skilled in the art, with no point constituting the exercise of remarkable technical creativity being found.

Furthermore, providing error notifications by email is well known as a way of dealing with errors, as described in cited example 3.

For other well-known examples of duplexing, see prior art literature.
